Re: Letter of Evaluation for Ty Creelan

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Ty Creelan, whom I have supervised during his recent four months as a Certified Nursing Assistant on the night shift at Avamere's The Pearl at Kruse Way center. Although he is relatively new to our facility, he has quickly earned a reputation among the nursing staff as someone who is dependable, conscientious and committed to providing high-quality patient care.

Night shift requires initiative and teamwork, and Ty consistently demonstrates both. Rather than limiting himself to his assigned responsibilities, he actively looks for opportunities to support other CNAs when their workload becomes heavy. He understands that good patient care is a team effort and is willing to step in wherever he is needed.

As a registered nurse, one quality I especially appreciate is his diligence in observing patients and communicating changes in their condition. He does not assume that concerns will resolve on their own or that someone else will notice them. He reports changes promptly and appropriately, allowing the nursing team to assess patients in a timely manner and respond when necessary. That level of attentiveness contributes meaningfully to patient safety.

One example that stands out involved a patient who struggled with severe anxiety and frequent episodes of yelling over the course of several weeks. Rather than becoming frustrated or dismissive, Ty remained consistently patient, calm, and respectful throughout each interaction. He recognized that the patient's behavior reflected distress rather than intentional disruption, and he continued to provide compassionate care while preserving the patient's dignity. That kind of patience cannot be taught easily and speaks to his character.

Ty also takes pride in many of the less visible responsibilities that help the entire facility function smoothly. During the night shift, he routinely takes care of tasks that often go unnoticed, including removing trash from multiple departments and completing work that allows the day shift to begin with a clean, organized environment. His attitude reflects an understanding that every task contributes to quality patient care, regardless of whether it receives recognition.

Dependability has also been one of his strengths. Since joining our team, he has maintained excellent attendance and has not missed a scheduled shift. Our patients and staff benefit from knowing they can rely on him to be present and ready to work.

In a relatively short period of time, Ty has established himself as a CNA who combines strong work ethic with compassion, teamwork, and professionalism. I am confident he will continue to excel in healthcare and will be an asset wherever his career leads him. I recommend him without reservation.

Sincerely,

B. McHenry
